Memorandum on the Rainfall of June and July and the Probable Amount during August and September, 1967

No. SL316/9098.—1. Weather in India during June and July.

The Rainfall during the months of June and July 1967 was in large excess in Saurashtra and Kutch, in moderate excess in the Konkan, Madhya Maharashtra, Andhra Pradesh, the Madras State and Interior Mysore and in slight excess in Sub-Himalayan West Bengal, Haryana, Himachal Pradesh, Gujarat Region and the Arabian Sea Islands. It was normal in west Uttar Pradesh, Rajasthan, Marathwada, Vidarbha, coastal Mysore and Kerala, in slight defect in the Bay Islands, Assam, Orissa, Bihar Plains, east Uttar Pradesh and Madhya Pradesh and in moderate defect in Gangetic West Bengal, Bihar Plateau, the Punjab and Jammu and Kashmir.

June—A temporary advance of the monsoon took place over Kerala by 13th May and there was good rainfall activity there till about 25th. Later it weakened and remained so for the next two weeks. A depression formed over the southeast Bay of Bengal about 250 kms. northwest of Port Blair on 15th May, intensified into a severe cyclonic storm by the next two days and later moved north-northeastwards into Burma. Under its influence, the Bay branch of the monsoon advanced into the Andaman Sea and the extreme south Bay of Bengal by 18th May.

The monsoon revived its activity over Kerala by 8th June and it continued to be strong there till 12th. A trough of low pressure which developed over east central Arabian Sea on 10th shifted to northeast and adjoining northwest Arabian Sea where it became unimportant by 16th. Under its influence, the monsoon advanced as a feeble current along the west coast up to Surat by 17th. Strengthening later, it extended into Gujarat State in the course of the next two days.

There was fairly good thundershower activity over Assam and Sub-Himalayan, West Bengal during the first week. It was followed by the onset of the monsoon over these areas by 7th. The monsoon later advanced slowly into Gangetic West Bengal by 16th and as a weak current into Bihar State by 18th.

A low pressure area which formed over the Bay of Bengal off the south Orissa coast on 22nd moved inland on 24th and weakened off. A low pressure area which formed over west central and adjoining north Arabian Sea on 21st shifted eastwards and persisted as an upper air cyclonic circulation over Saurashtra and Kutch till 24th. Under the combined influence of these two systems there was good monsoon activity over the Peninsula, Gujarat State, the central parts of the country and northeast India. The monsoon also extended into Uttar Pradesh, east Rajasthan and Himachal Pradesh during the period 24th—28th. Another well marked low pressure area formed over the northwest and adjoining west central Bay of Bengal on 28th and concentrated into a depression by the next morning centered about 100 kms. southeast of Chandbali. Moving northwestwards, it crossed north Orissa coast near Chandbali the same evening and weakened into a low pressure area. Under its influence, well distributed rainfall occurred over most parts of the country and caused scattered or isolated heavy to very heavy rainfall outside south Peninsula.

Two western disturbances affected northwest India during the first and third week respectively. In association with the first western disturbance, steep pressure gradient prevailed over south Rajasthan, north Gujarat State and adjoining west Madhya Pradesh during the first week causing strong dust-raising winds there. The second western disturbance was quite active and caused a spell of good thundershowers over northwest India and adjoining areas during the period 15th—18th.

Rainfall for the month of June was in large excess in Himachal Pradesh, Gujarat State and the Madras State, in moderate excess in Sub-Himalayan West Bengal, west Rajasthan and the Konkan and in slight excess in east Rajasthan and south Interior Mysore. It was in slight defect in north Assam, Orissa, Jammu and Kashmir, east Madhya Pradesh, Vidarbha, coastal Mysore and Kerala, in moderate defect in the Bay Islands, south Assam, Gangetic West Bengal, west Uttar Pradesh and Punjab and in large defect in Bihar State and Haryana. It was normal over the rest of the country.

July—The monsoon advanced progressively into the remaining parts of northwest India and covered the entire country by 2nd.

The low pressure area, lying over northeast Orissa and adjoining Gangetic West Bengal and Bihar Plateau last month and moved very slowly to northeast Madhya Pradesh where it became unimportant by 4th. Another low pressure area persisted over Saurashtra and Kutch up to 5th and moving later northwards, merged into the seasonal low. An upper air cyclonic circulation lying over Punjab and adjoining parts of West Pakistan on 5th moved away eastwards across the Western Himalayas by 7th. In association with these developments, there was sustained and well distributed rainfall over most parts of the country during the first week. The monsoon was also active or vigorous over east Madhya Pradesh, Saurashtra and Kutch, west coast, Uttar Pradesh and northwest India on a few days. Dwarka recorded an exceptionally heavy fall of 27 cm. of rain on 3rd.

The monsoon trough shifted northwards and its axis lay close to the foot of the Himalayas during the second week causing widespread and scattered heavy to very heavy rainfall along the foot of the Himalayas and the adjoining plains and a recession in rainfall activity over the rest of the country outside the west coast. According to press reports, the Brahmaputra and its tributaries in north Assam and most of the rivers in north Bengal and north Bihar rose in spate and crossed the danger marks inundating low lying areas and causing damage to standing crops. Road and rail communications in north Assam and north Bengal were also cut off. There was an increase in the rainfall activity over the Peninsula, the central parts of the country and Uttar Pradesh in the middle of the month due to an upper air trough extending from Uttar Pradesh to Madras State from 14th to 17th.

The eastern end of the monsoon trough shifted appreciably southwards by 17th. An upper air cyclonic circulation developed over southeast Madhya Pradesh and adjoining Orissa on 18th and moved westwards to Gujarat State where it persisted till 27th. Another upper air cyclonic circulation which appeared over east Madhya Pradesh on 21st shifted eastwards to northwest Bay of Bengal where a low pressure area formed on 25th. It developed into a depression by 26th morning with centre about 150 kms. southeast of Balasore. Intensifying further into a deep depression it moved westnorthwestwards and crossed the north Orissa coast near Chandbali the same night. Moving fast it weakened into a depression. It took a northwesterly course from 28th and weakening later merged into the seasonal low over Rajasthan by 31st. Another depression developed over the north and adjoining central Bay by the morning of 31st with centre near Lat. 19°N and Long. 90°E and intensified into a deep depression by the same evening. In association with these developments, the monsoon activity revived generally over the country at the beginning of the third week and remained vigorous or strong for the rest of the month over the belt extending from Orissa to Gujarat State including the rest of Maharashtra State. Particularly in Maharashtra and Gujarat States exceptionally heavy falls were recorded by several stations. Some of the noteworthy amounts of rainfall recorded were Bhira 35 cm., Mahabaleshwar 31 cm. and Poona 12 cm. on 27th, Bhira 43 cm., Bombay (Santacruz) 20 cm. and Bombay (Colaba) 18 cm. on 29th. According to press reports the continuous heavy rains that occurred during the last week over Maharashtra and Gujarat States led to the flooding of most of the rivers and low lying areas in these states and caused disruption of road and rail communications. Normal life in many places like Ahmedabad, Bombay, Kalyan, Poona etc. was also paralysed due to the floods.

Rainfall for the month of July 1967 was in large excess in Saurashtra and Kutch, Madhya Maharashtra, Rayalaseema and north Interior Mysore, in moderate excess in Haryana, coastal Andhra Pradesh, Telangana, Madras State, south Interior Mysore and Kerala and in slight excess in Sub-Himalayan West Bengal, west Uttar Pradesh, Konkan, Marathwada, Vidarbha, coastal Mysore and the Arabian Sea Islands. It was normal in the Bay Islands, Assam, Orissa, Bihar Plains, Himachal Pradesh, east Madhya Pradesh and Gujarat Region, in slight defect in east Uttar Pradesh, Punjab and Rajasthan and in moderate defect in Gangetic West Bengal, Bihar Plateau, Jammu and Kashmir and west Madhya Pradesh.

The following table gives for each sub-division the total rainfall during June and July, its departure from normal and the percentage departure from normal:—

2. Conditions having influence on the rain of August and September 1967.

A foreshadowing of the monsoon rainfall of June to September was issued early in June. Recent data have been examined to see if any useful supplementary fore-shadowing for the remainder of the season can now be given. The relevant data are the following:—

Indian Pressure in July—In July pressure was generally below normal over the entire country.

Indian Ocean pressure in July—At Mauritius, pressure was in excess of normal by 0.5 mb.

Java Rain—The monthly rainfall departures from October 1966 to February 1967 were +50 per cent, —4 per cent, +8 per cent, +8 per cent and +3 per cent respectively.

South Rhodesia Rain—Rainfall from October 1966 to April 1967 was in defect by 19.8 mm.

South American Pressure—Pressure departures were as follows:—

	Buenos Aires	Cordoba	Santiago
June 1967 .. .. .	—0.8 mb.	+1.3 mb.	+2.5 mb.
July 1967 .. .. .	—0.3 mb.	—0.7 mb.	+0.8 mb.

Indo-Gangetic River Discharges—Mean departure of the total river discharges during April and May 1967 was in defect by 44 (10,000 cusecs).

3. Inferences from the Data.

In foreshadowing the August and September rainfall in the Peninsula [taken to consist of Maharashtra, Gujarat, Madhya Pradesh, Interior Mysore, North, Telangana and coastal Mysore (excluding South Kanara)], the chief factors in the order of decreasing reliability as judged from the available data are Mauritius pressure, Java Rain, Indian Pressure, and South Rhodesia rain. Of the factors Indian pressure is very favourable, South Rhodesia Rain indifferent while Java rain is moderately unfavourable and Mauritius pressure is unfavourable. The statistical analysis indicates that there is a four to one chance that the total rainfall of August and September 1967 in the Peninsula will lie above 83 per cent of the normal.

For Northwest India (taken to consist of the Uttar Pradesh, Haryana, the Punjab, Himachal Pradesh, Delhi, Chandigarh and Rajasthan), the factors used in the order of decreasing reliability, as judged by the available data are Indo-Gangetic river discharges, Indian pressure, South American pressure, Mauritius pressure and South Rhodesia rain. This year South American pressure is favourable, Indian pressure, South Rhodesia rain and Indo-Gangetic river discharges are indifferent while Mauritius pressure is moderately unfavourable. The statistical analysis indicates that there is a four to one chance that the total rainfall of August and September 1967 in Northwest India will lie above 84 per cent of the normal.

4. Summary

The factors are conflicting and all that can be said is that the total rainfall during August–September 1967 is likely to be normal both in the Peninsula and Northwest India.
